The Daily Standard. Triday, December 9, 1870. Civic Taxation. This city has been blessed with five Mayors, and we don't know how many City Councillors, since its organization in 1862; yet from that day to this, we are not aware that any well-directed attempt has been made to equalize taxation. In the original charter, the corporation authorities were left to levy taxes on what they pleased. In subsequent amendments, new taxes were sub-stituted or old ones confirmed. Taxation now, however, is levied under two Acts, one passed in 1867 and the other in 1869. By the last Act under the authority of the City Council, real estate has been made subject to one-third of one per cent on its market value; that is, thirty-three and one-third cents on every dollar. In addition, "Persons carrying on any business or trade by wholesale, must pay $20 per annum."

Every other business, trade, or calling must pay $5 per annum. Owners of dogs have to pay—or, we might more properly say, are liable to pay $2 per dog; and every private person who keeps horses has to pay $2 50 per head. keeps horses has to pay $2 50 per head. These constitute the taxes, so far as we know, that the citizens of this city have to pay. Now, we have to say that the fair, and, consequently, unjust—one class of property being virtually exempted, whilst another class is very highly taxed. In no part of the American continent, north of Mexico, are we aware of a westminster, where such an unfair system of taxation exists. All over the United States, all over Canada, real and L by a From personal property is taxed alike. Here, however, real property is taxed and personal property goes scot free. Now, we put the case to any one possessing a scintilla of justice in his composition, to show why the owners of real estate shall pay into the Civic Treasury $3 33 on every $1,000,-whilst the owner of merchandize don't pay one cent! Nearly ness, and, as a matter of course, has to class of citizens has to pay taxes on empt from paying taxes on it, and remain subject only, if subject at all, to a license? Labor, we know, is divided and subdivided, to attain the highest degree of perfection; so is capital. Now, if one man takes his capital.

THE GOVERNOR.

Will be Given at the Will be Given at the Tuesday December 19th, 1870.

The Programme will include vests it in land and buildings, property, merchandize for instance, be common ? engaged in some trade, calling, or busipay his annual license, and besides that, the tax on his real estate. Now, if this realty and licenses, why, we ask, are those who own personal property exwhy shall he be liable to a tax, whilst the man who puts his money out on mortgage, or allows it to lie unemployed mon sense, no fairness, no justice in continuing such a thing. Suppose one man invests $20,000 in real estate in this city,—and another man invests $20,000 in merchandise. The former will pay to the city $66 and over, whilst the latter will pay nothing. If the license be then, if the owner of $20,000 in merchandise pays $20 per year as a whole-sale dealer, still be pays $46 per year less taxes than the owner of $20,000 in real estate. If the owner of $20,000 in merchandize be a retail dealer, he will pay $5 per year, or $61 per year less than the owner of real estate of the value of $20,000. Again, there is no exemption from taxation of real estate that is unocespied or untenanted, yet all who have money in the banks, or hold Government bonds, or money out on mortgage, or moneys vested in personal property, are ot. Year by year have mayors been elected; year by year have city council-lors been elected, yet civic taxation is of remonstrance escapes from the lips of these whom our citizens have returned to attend to our Manicipal affairs. This state of things is not, in our judgment, owing to any disposition of one class of tarpeage. class of taxpayers to escape paying their just and fair share of the civic burdens; but it is due to the stolid indifference of our civic authorities to the def 3mdaw nterests of those whom they have proed to represent, and to the crystallizstapidity and unjustice of those minated and irresponsible politicians to bom Providence for some inscrutable se has committed this country the last twelve years. It ced good service; but a real live Council,—with a live Mayor at ead, might lead the citizens to take such ateps to equalize taxation as would make our tax-roll an index to the justice of there administration, and not as it is now a piece of statutory injustice solomaly and silently adopted year by year. charges which have been preferred against his administration of British Guiaana, by Mr. Des Voux, the Administration of the Island of St. Lucia. The best proof that these charges are not without a reasonable show of foundation is that the Government has sent a Commission of Inquiry to Demerara. That Commission, which has been receiving the evidence of planters and coolies for two months past, is likely to sit for two months longer. The administration of Sir Francis Hincks, as well as that of his successor, is on its trial. The Coolie laws of Demerara are said by English lawyers to be an outrage on justice and common sense. It would be well justice and common sense. It would be well of Sir F. Hicks would offer himself as witness before the inquiry has iterminated; for he is regarded as largely responsible for the policy which has been pursued toward the unfortunate Asiatics, 1,200 of whom have

A SHORT MEMORY, - During the last session of the Dominion Parliament, an attempt was made to establish, by enactment, a uniform qualification for members and elections throughout the Dominion; but the bill evoked so much hostility that it was not pressed to a reading." The above extract we make from the Colonist of yesterday. Our firm and unalterable convictious are just the reverse. I there fore recommend to Congress to authorize the appointment of Commissioners to take proof of amounts and ownership of vessels and their claims, and that authority be

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL DISPATCHES MAILED AT PORT TOWNSEND .- Capt. Gebsen, of the North German bark Galates, informs us that he brought letters, drafts and government dispatches from Nicolaivsky, at the mouth of the Amoor River, to be forwarded to St. Petersburg. He also brought private letters from merchants to be ferwarded to Bremen. These were all mailed in the Port Townsend postoffice. Duplicates were sent overland via Moscow. The bark was twenty-eight days from Nicolaivsky to Port Townsend, and allowing twelve days for the mail to go to New York, and twenty days from New York to St. Petersburg, would make sixty days from Nocolaivsky to St. Petersburg via Puget Sound, while at this season of the year the overland route via Moscow will take ninery days, although when the winter sets in and the journey is performed by sledges, the time occupied will be about sixty-five days. But even with a sailing vessel and over eight hundred miles of stage travel, for our mails, It seems that it is actually a quicker route from the Pacific to St. Petersburg via Moscow. When the Northern PacificRailroad, is built, and steamers run between the Amoor and Puget Sound, not only will all mail matter come this way, but an immense trade which is now dormant will be developed and add
